Richard Roberts and a Shop Receipt

Richard Roberts ran a clock makers and jewellers business in Moseley from 1868. His shop (identified by the large wall clock in the above photograph) was on a site now occupied by the Cooperative supermarket, north of The Fighting Cocks (also visible in the photograph).

Clarence Roberts took the shop over and lived there until Tesco's bought it from him in 1974. His son worked there too. Clarence Roberts wound the clock at The Fighting Cocks until he was aged 90.
